

What advice would you give for each of these scenarios?

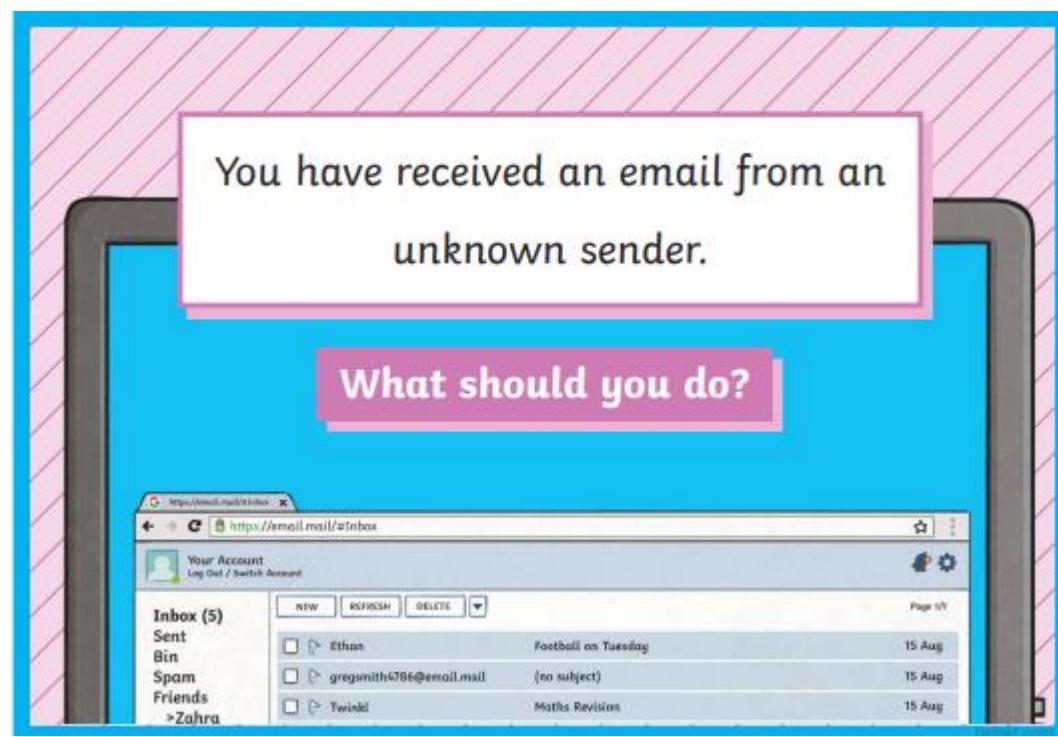

You are searching online when a pop-up appears. It says that you have won a prize and asks you to click on a link.

What should you do?

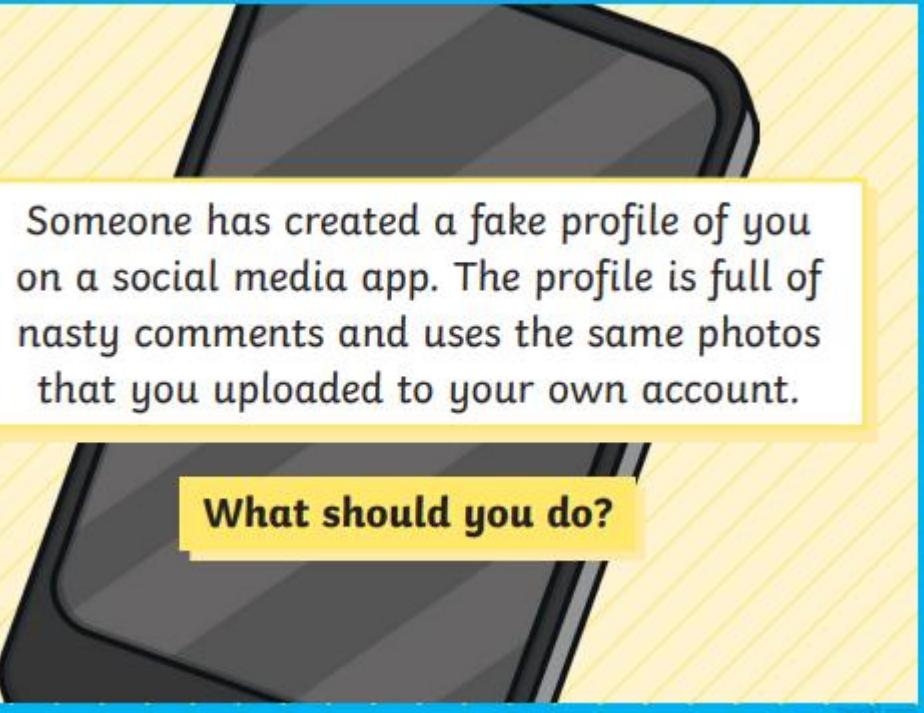

You have received an email from an unknown sender.

What should you do?

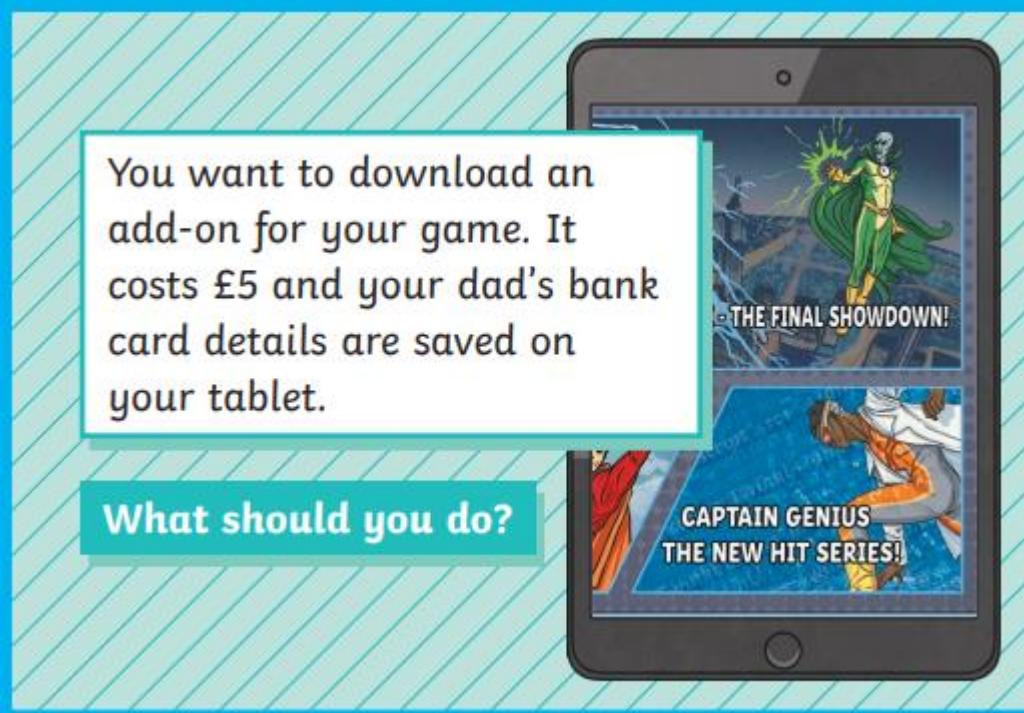

What advice would you give for each of these scenarios?

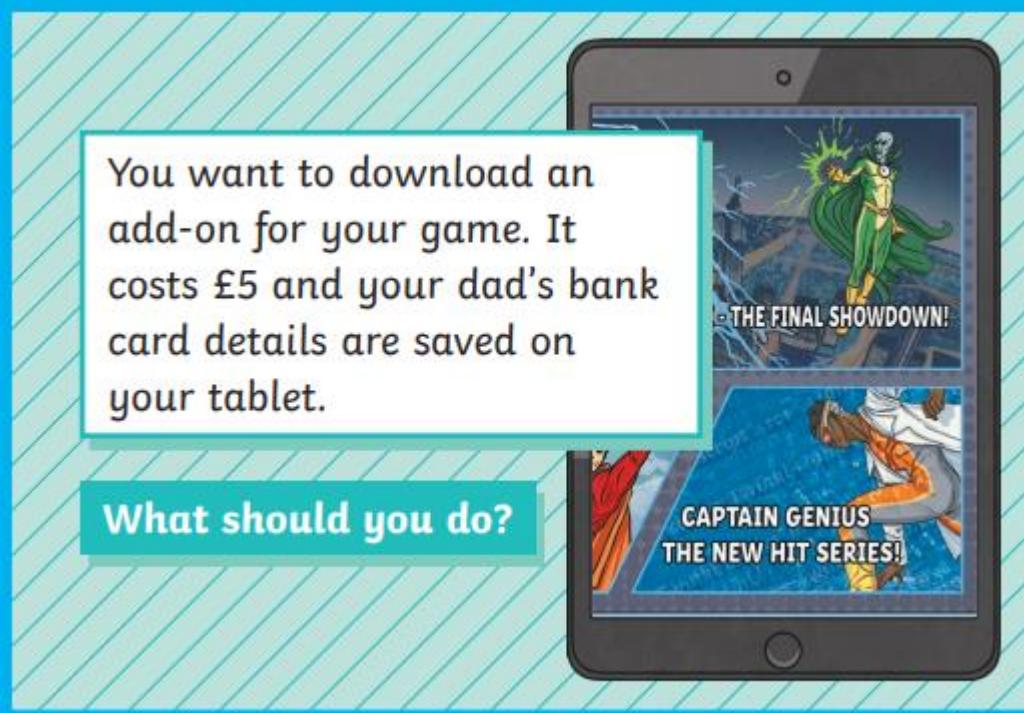

Someone has created a fake profile of you on a social media app. The profile is full of nasty comments and uses the same photos that you uploaded to your own account.

What should you do?

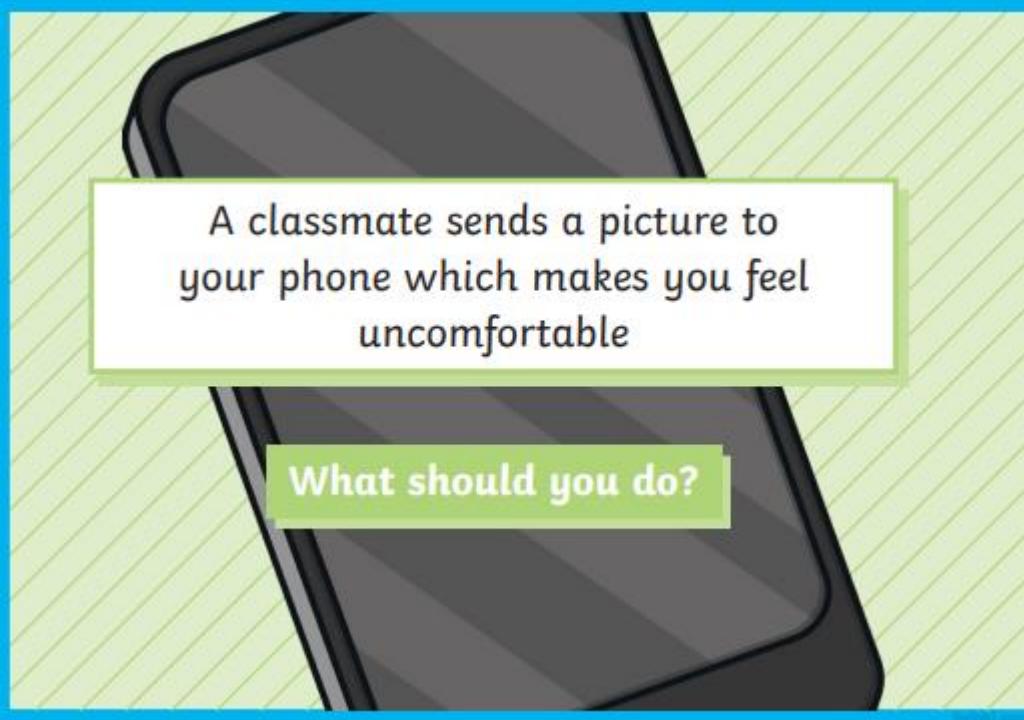

You want to download an add-on for your game. It costs £5 and your dad's bank card details are saved on your tablet.

What should you do?

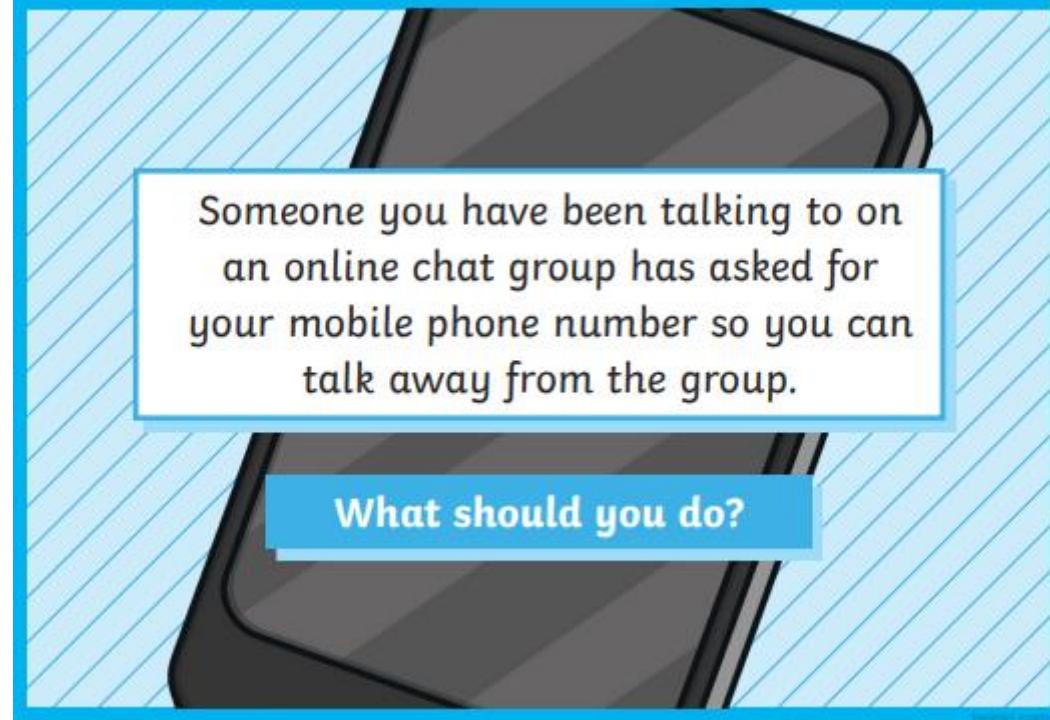

What advice would you give for each of these scenarios?

A classmate sends a picture to your phone which makes you feel uncomfortable

What should you do?

Someone you have been talking to on an online chat group has asked for your mobile phone number so you can talk away from the group.

What should you do?

What advice would you give for each of these scenarios?

Last Name:	<input type="text"/>	First Name:	<input type="text"/>
Address:
<input type="text"/>

You want to join a website, which has lots of great games. Before joining you must first fill out a form, providing your full name, age and address.

What should you do?

You are thinking of joining a website that requires you to have a profile picture.

What should you do?

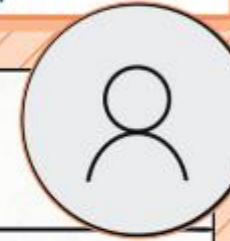

Insert

Upload

Take a snapshot

By URL

More ▾

Drag an image here

Or, if you prefer...

Choose an image to upload

What advice would you give for each of these scenarios?